Investment update - November

Geopolitical tensions continued to dominate market movements in November. The ongoing US/China trade war seems to have subsided for the time being but for how long remains the question, as tensions are expected to resurface and continue to affect global growth. Brexit remains top billing on every news channel, with its chaotic nature showing little signs of abating as Theresa May's deal still requires ratification from Parliament. This political uncertainty is likely to negatively impact growth and influence market sentiment. Additionally, all eyes remain on the US economy and the Fed's response, with many believing that expected rate hikes may be scaled back in light of expected weaker economic activity. A change was made to the Defensive strategy's underlying asset allocation in the alternatives sector through the addition of the Fortem Capital Progressive Growth fund. The fund aims to provide positive returns of 6-7% over the medium to long term, whilst aiming to reduce equity market beta in short term draw-downs. Our Investment Committee continue to expect our alternative investment funds to play an important role in defending against market volatility. Furthermore, if underlying conditions become more challenging and uncertain as we move towards the new year, opportunities may arise for active managers to exploit.
