Investment update - September

September saw world markets rise as investors returned, potentially revived from their summer holidays. During the period, both the US and Europe undertook further monetary easing in the face of a continued slowdown in global economic data (particularly within the manufacturing sector), whilst in the UK, the uncertainty over Brexit continued to cloud the outlook for the economy. It is evident that the US/China trade war continues to play a prominent role in the slowdown in growth across most major economies and it remains unclear as to whether a resolution will develop, with further tariffs set to come into place later this year. The Cautious strategy remained unchanged during September, however as we enter another potentially difficult period for markets, our Investment Committee continue to proactively seek to protect the hard-earned gains made so far this year and position the strategies to take advantage of a potential buying opportunity. With this in mind, our Investment Committee are looking to undertake a risk reduction exercise that can be achieved without reducing our commitments to equity markets. Our neutral stance in equities reflects the balance between continued opportunities supported by additional central bank stimulus, but also some caution from slowing economic growth/profits/margins.
