Investment update - December

Equity markets continued to rally in December and finished 2020 strongly, with news surrounding the arrival and potential roll-out of COVID-19 vaccines continuing to boost investor sentiment. Boris Johnson also delivered the long-promised gift of a Brexit deal with the European Union. However, near-term headwinds still exist, with renewed winter lockdowns, country-specific spikes in virus cases, new variants of the disease and the logistics of a vaccine roll-out acting as restraining influences on markets and investor sentiment. Although consumer confidence and business investment may take time to fully return, the direction of travel is slightly more positive. An improved cycle of corporate earnings growth can be expected in 2021 with continued accommodative policy measures and extensive support schemes from central banks and government. As such, this improving economic outlook led our Investment Committee to increase our stockmarket exposure to the upper end of the strategy's equity range in December. An allocation, funded from cash, was made to a thematic and global sector through the addition of the Ninety One Global Environment and Legg Mason Global Infrastructure funds. Our Investment Committee feel this sector is best placed to capitalise from the recent global policy shifts in Europe (European Green Deal), China (carbon neutral by 2060) and the US (Biden's presidential election victory - renewables and infrastructure).
