Investment update - November

Concerns over the new Omicron variant led to a sharp reversal in equity markets towards the end of November and developed markets ended the month over 2% down. Investors are now looking to ascertain the efficacy of vaccines against the Omicron variant and the potential requirement for further lockdowns and other restrictions globally. However, there appears to be some optimism in terms of the likely protection offered by existing vaccines and also a belief that key economies will be more resilient to potential lockdowns. Nevertheless, central banks face an even more muddled picture in terms of inflation outlook. Prior to the Omicron variant, the rhetoric from the US Federal Reserve was becoming more hawkish in the face of the Consumer Price Index rising above 6%. It remains to be seen to what extent the potentially damaging economic consequences of the new variant might impact that view. During the month, no changes were made to the strategy, as equity exposure was maintained at the top end of allowable equity range. At the time of writing, this has been rewarded as equity markets have recovered quite strongly since the initial reaction to the Omicron variant. With heightened levels of inflation in many developed economies, investors seeking real returns continue to look to equities. Investing in companies with pricing power, i.e. the ability to increase their prices, remains a key method of hedging inflation risk.

Headline positioning

- ~ Equity exposure remains at the top end of the strategy's allowable equity range with a bias to the US and Asia-Pacific ex. Japan.
- ~ We maintain a blend of both 'growth' and 'value' investment styles with a preference towards flexible all-cap managers that can rotate into mid/small caps to help enhance longer term growth.
- ~ In our lower risk strategies, we have reduced exposure to corporate bond funds in favour of flexible strategic bond funds, inflation-linked bond funds and 'market neutral' alternative investments, which continue to act as good portfolio stabilisers, diversifiers of risk and sources of return.
- ~ Cash exposure remains low and there continues to be focus on high levels of liquidity in everything that we own.
