Investment update - March

Global developed equity markets rallied 2.5% during March, recovering some of the losses seen earlier in the quarter. There was disparity in regional market returns, with the US market gaining over 3% whilst European markets fell. The US Federal Reserve, looking to address inflationary pressures, raised rates (by 0.25%) for the first time since 2018. In the UK, the latest forecasts suggest that inflation might peak at close to 9% before subsiding next year. Focus remains on how central bank policy combats these heightened levels of inflation versus supporting potentially fragile economic growth. The conflict in Ukraine is having a profound effect on energy prices, and in turn on inflation, given Russia's importance as a provider of oil and gas. Food and other commodity prices have also been significantly impacted. Financial markets have experienced a nervy start to the year; however, history dictates that it is often best to sit tight in terms of headline equity exposure during these periods. We continue to maintain equity allocations at their current level, with the strategy remaining at the upper end of its allowable equity range. We have, however, altered underlying equity exposures, reducing our weighting to Europe – which is currently facing the brunt of the geopolitical conflict between Russia and Ukraine – and topping up allocations to infrastructure, which not only boasts both defensive and inflation-protection characteristics, but also provides greater exposure to regions outside of Europe.

Headline positioning

- The strategies remain at the top end of their allowable equity range with good exposure to those parts of the world less likely to be exposed to the economic fall-out from war in Ukraine.
- We have reduced or removed entirely our exposure to Europe and increased our allocations to infrastructure, which not only boasts both defensive and inflation-protection characteristics, but also provides greater exposure to regions outside of Europe.
- In our lower risk strategies, we continue to favour inflation-linked bond funds, actively managed strategic bond funds and 'market neutral' alternative investments, which continue to act as good portfolio stabilisers, diversifiers of risk and sources of return.
- Cash exposure remains low and there continues to be focus on high levels of liquidity in everything that we own.
