Investment objective

To build capital in real (inflation-adjusted) terms over the medium to longer term. Investors should expect a high correlation to stockmarket behaviour and rewards, and be entirely comfortable with substantial volatility and very limited protection in times of market weakness.

Risk profile

The strategy is managed in accordance with Dynamic Planner risk profile 7, with the strategy's expected volatility targeted to stay within the assigned Dynamic Planner risk profile's boundaries.

About the Hybrid Passive Risk Targeted Managed Service

Our Hybrid Passive Risk Targeted ("RT") Managed Service consists of five actively managed investment strategies (Hybrid Passive RT 3-7) that provide lower cost access to our discretionary fund management capabilities through the combination of active and passive collective investments. Each strategy has a different level of risk and expected return, and are rigorously mapped within the volatility boundaries assigned to specific Dynamic Planner risk profiles (RTM 3-7). The service provides a solution that, when cost considerations are paramount, does not compromise on quality.

Investment update

September was another strong month for equity markets with the MSCI World Index up over 3% in sterling terms. Overall, markets remain supported by a backdrop of easing trade and inflation concerns, positive corporate earnings data and optimism over the impact of further developments within the artificial intelligence sector. Bond markets also proved modestly positive over the month. The US market rose nearly 4%, helped by further rises in the technology sector and by data pointing to strength in the US economy. As was widely expected, the US Federal Reserve cut interest rates by 25 basis points. Asian markets performed very strongly over the month, and Asia has been the best performing region this year. This has been driven by a generally improving economic backdrop in the region but also by the weaker US dollar. Turning to the UK, the FTSE 100 Index did rise 0.8% but lagged other key regions. European markets similarly rose but lagged the US and Asia. Interest rate expectations continue to fluctuate, however sovereign bonds in most regions posted positive returns over the month and credit 'spreads' (the excess yield over government bonds) remained tight. Where relevant to the strategy, our alternatives funds, which target absolute returns regardless of the direction of markets, continue to perform well, and provide an important diversification role within portfolios. We think concerns over the impact of tariffs have been a little overdone and we expect global growth to be around 3% over the next couple of years, led by Asia and the US. We also believe that inflationary pressures will remain relatively comfortable, allowing central banks to adjust rates as appropriate to support economic growth. As such, we think the macroeconomic environment remains supportive for risk assets and the strategy remains at the upper end of its Dynamic Planner risk profile. We believe that US rates may come down slightly less than the market is expecting, while UK rates may come down slightly more as the economy continues to struggle. This should support some recovery in the US dollar versus sterling and also suggests that UK gilts are currently attractive.
