Investment objective

To preserve capital in real (inflation-adjusted) terms over the medium to longer term. Investors should expect low levels of reward and a low correlation to stockmarket behaviour, including modest fluctuations in values.

Risk profile

The strategy is managed in accordance with Dynamic Planner risk profile 3, with the strategy's expected volatility targeted to stay within the assigned Dynamic Planner risk profile's boundaries.

About the Blended Risk Targeted Managed Portfolio Service

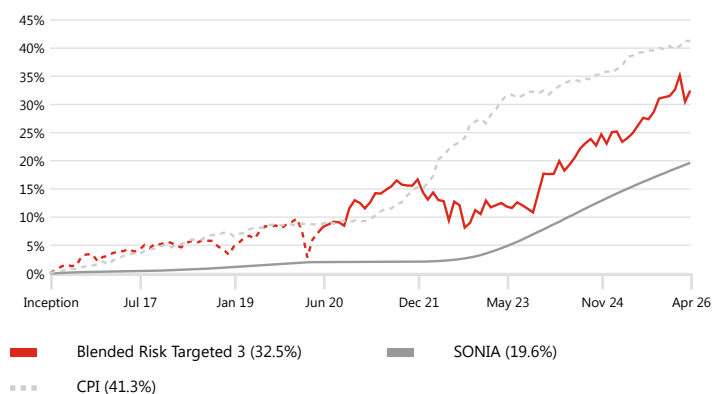

Our Blended Risk Targeted ('RT') Managed Portfolio Service consists of five actively managed investment strategies (Blended RT 3-7) that provide lower cost access to our discretionary fund management capabilities through the combination of active and passive collective investments. Each strategy has a different level of risk and expected return, and are rigorously mapped within the volatility boundaries assigned to specific Dynamic Planner risk profiles (RTM 3-7). The service provides a solution that, when cost considerations are paramount, does not compromise on quality.

Investment update

After the weakness seen in March, equity markets staged a sharp rally in April. The MSCI World Index rose nearly 9% in local currency terms, 6.4% in sterling terms. Technology stocks performed exceptionally strongly, benefiting US and Asian markets. Returns from markets such as the UK, which has limited exposure to technology and 'growth' sectors, were consequently more muted. News flow regarding the Middle East conflict was periodically more positive however continued uncertainty meant that the oil price rose in April. Improving sentiment over the prospect of a ceasefire in the Middle East therefore seems to have been only partly responsible for the market rally. The other key driver was the very strong set of corporate earnings announcements, particularly from the giant 'hyper-scalers' in the US that are most involved in building out the required infrastructure for artificial intelligence expansion. Concerns over the potential impact of higher energy prices on inflation impacted government bonds in markets such as the UK and Europe however the more positive equity sentiment boosted confidence in corporate debt, benefitting credit markets. We have been rewarded for not cutting overall equity exposure in reaction to the market sell off in March and have consequently captured the sharp rebound over April. While the conflict in the Middle East will certainly impact the shorter-term outlook for growth and inflation, we do not believe that the impact will be sufficient to derail our positive thesis for risk assets. We acknowledge that a very prolonged conflict and disruption to shipping could change the macroeconomic backdrop more materially however, for now, we are maintaining our current equity exposure while the strategy remains at the upper end of its corresponding Dynamic Planner risk profile. In acknowledgement of heightened geopolitical risks, we have slightly reduced risk by cutting exposure to Asian equities. These proceeds have primarily been reallocated to infrastructure assets that offer more defensive characteristics. We remain more cautious on fixed income markets and have therefore reduced inflation/interest rate risk by selling our longer-dated gilt exposure.
